COLD WAVE BRINGS OUT THE OVERCOATS

yesterday and still remains a ringal and unwelcome guest.

Chronic kickers, who for months past have been inveighing against the heat of summer, are now loudly crying for what has been and sneezing and coughing over the discomfort of the present. Astraw hats have disappeared as mysteriously as will the soda at the first visit of frost and overcents have usurped the profince of the "shirtwaist." The odor of cidur, campbor and the moth ball pervades the air and proclaims the reappearance of ancient friends. Virginal ties have given pince to neckwear of warmer tendency and low-necked collars have taken an upward turn in a single night. Where are the clothes of yesterday?

The first touch of winter came without warnins. From Vermont, where snows and frost prevail, all along the Atlantic coast to Georgia, summer took a hasty departure. In New York and Washington the thermometer dropped to 56 degrees, while in Rehmond the mercury went 2-10 of a degree lower.

Only four times 'in the last eight years best autumn weather reached this city at so early a date and practically only twice has it been colder. In 1889 the thermometer registered exactly half a century and in 1902 it went two points lower.

How long the chilly snap will continue Weather Director Evans will not say. He says that September is as uncertain as a mule; ye never can tell just how to handle it.

SUDDEN END OF FARMERS CONGRESS

SESSION IN DETAIL.

Immigration Questions Are Productive of Lively Debate. ductive of Lively Debate.

President Jordan called the Farmers' Congress to order at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, ard, much to his surprise, he found largely more than a quorum present. A quorum was on hand, but nothing like a majority of the delegates. The attractions of historical Richmond and its battle-scarred suburbs were more "fetching" than those of the congress, and the visitors were out enjoying themselves sight-seeing, but the Congress went on with its business all ing themselves sight-seeing, but the Congress went on with its business all the same.

A resolution by George G, Hutchinson, of Pennsylvania, which was passed, provides for a regular standing committee, to be known as the "legislative committee," whose duty it shall be to keep in touch with Washington and do Ats utmost to have bills and pother matters proposed by this Congress.

The preliminary business being cleared away, the president called the regular programme, which provided an address by Mr. Robert Dec. Ward, of Boston, Mass. Mr. Ward appeared before the Congress by invitation as the representative of the "Immigration Restriction League and National Civic Federation." He opened with a candid statement of the aims and objects of the league of which he is a representative, He said he was here by invitation to present the views of his association, the aims and objects which are to restrict immigration in a conservative way. Mr. Ward made a pleasing adthe congress in the afternoon there was an air of business. It was plain that the farmers intended to finish up that the business.

these the programme called for a lecture for yesterday afternoon by Mrs. John A. Logan. As announced yesterday, Mrs. Logan was kept nawy by a death in her family. President Jordan, not wishing to disappoint the congress, sought another female speaker to supply Mrs. Logan's place. Fortunately Miss Annie Blalock, of Georgia, was passing through the city. She consented to tarry a day and fill the vacuum, and well she did it. Miss Blalock is a Boston educated Georgian. She is intensely Southern, but has found it worth while to utilize some good Yankee fells. She is gifted; she is cultivated; she is bread-minded, and she is patriotic. Miss Blalock is not a novice on the rostrum; she has spoken before great audiences on various subjects, but she was not expecting to be caught up on the fly, and when President Jordan appealed to her to help out his prearranged programme, she was in a certain sense unprepared; but she took in the situation, consented to fill the vacuum, and the Farmers' Congress is all the better for it.

Miss Blalock has a hobby. It is education—practical; universal education—and it was but natural that her improvised address of yesterday afternoon should have been on this subject.

Although she was well up on her subject, but being caught up unawares, so to spenk, the brave little Georgia woman seemed to feel the need of inspiration, and so with a pleasing and patriotic interlude she asked her audience to Join her in singing "America."

Southerners are not altogether as familiar with this national hymn as' they ought to be, but with the help of the Westerners and the Northerners in the congress they made it ring in great style yesterday.

Miss Blalock then proceeded to speak

The retiring president made a most handsome speech in surrendering the gavel, and the new president did himself proud in taking it in hand. Beyond these features the change of administration was tame.

The congress was handsomely entertained at the West End Park last night.

and his negro quartette sang to the hearts' content of the fyisitors. Refreshments were served on the grounds and the yisitors took in all the shows lress and his very modest way of predress and his very modest way of pre-senting his views won the admiration of those who did not agree with him. It is not out of place right here to quote a Westerner, who spoke to the Times-Dispatch man. Said he: "I don't believe what Mr. Ward preaches, but he is such a nice little fellow and so gentlemanly, by gosh, I'd like to think his way."

Farmers Hold the Key.

Farmers Fiold the Key.

Mr. Ward argued that the American farmers, really hold the key to the situation and can readily solve the immigration problem. Said he: "I believe that American farmers have everything to gain and practically nothing to lose by advocating the three amendments to our immigration laws, which are to come before the next Congress and which now have the most general support of the country at large."

These three amendments he discussed in full. They were: First, the head tax should be raised; second, we should de-migrant question from that expressed by Mr. Ward, in fact, he was much in favor of a wide open immigration gate. These opposing views by experts got the congress to thinking and as one question of immigration and labor is the all-absorbing question with farmers, it was but natural that a widely ramifying discussion followed.

Mr. Beverly, of Virginia delegation, got the floor and in advocating wide open doors to immigrants who came to till the soil, he took occasion to make a good natured shot at some of his Northern friends, who he accused of spoiling the negro with silly dreams of social equality.

L. B. Rice, of Port Huron, Mich., followed him and took the other side of the question. He said that where he lived on the frontier of Canada he could see the disadvantage of foreigners coming into this country, Mr. Rice said that all of the arrikes and troubles of the country were led by outsiders.

Messrs, Rhett, of South Carolina; Graham, of North Carolina; Noble, 'of Ohio, Frank Smith, of Virginia, and others, made earnest speeches, each taking views that fitted in with their own localities and none of them very well agreed as to the best policy. The whole discussion proved that there is a great diversity of opinion concerning this immigration question and that sooner of later immigration will be a problem for this country to solve.
